

St John's Church in Barmouth is holding an week long event to support the Royal British Legion, and you are invited to call in if you are visiting the area

St John's Church, Barmouth

3 - 10 November Centenary of the Loss of a Generation

Working together with the Royal British Legion and other interested parties, everyone has assembled material on the war and its impact around this part of Wales. The wide array of items also commemorates those persons individually who died, the great majority of whom are remembered on the various war memorials from Llandecwyn to Barmouth. A number of people have provided material on loan and there is a large display inside the church.

In addition, poppies created by local people and drawn by young people are on show around the building.

You are welcome to visit St John's Church during the opening hours between 10am and 4pm.

The event will culminate in an Armistice Tea Party on Saturday 10th November between 2 - 4 pm.
